

The FCC should use every means to lower broadband cost via this proposal. All the present companies that provide fast internet service are keeping prices artificially high while there is record glut of high capacity (fiber) not even being used. More competition will force lower prices. Most complainers of 03-104 are hobbiests that want large amounts of spectrum for their play time activities while their frequencies could be used for uses that have more public benefit. Model airplane, amateur radio, and beacons have very little to no general benefit to the public but they use a tremendous amount of spectrum. And the hobby users are misusing their priveleges and using illegal operating behavior that is obvious and known to the FCC. Its time to take HF frequencies and use them for public benefit.
